3. OWNERSHIP OF THE QUESTION BANK

The BELL question bank is an important proprietary asset of HEXEL VENTURES PRIVATE LIMITED.

The questions currently available through BELL are created internally by the BELL/HEXEL team.

The question bank, including the selection, arrangement, organisation, compilation, original wording, answers, explanations, and associated test structures created by BELL, is proprietary content of HEXEL to the extent protected under applicable intellectual-property law.

4. BASIS FOR QUESTION DEVELOPMENT

BELL's questions may be developed with inspiration and reference to:

- UPSC examination syllabus areas;
- Publicly available UPSC examination patterns;
- Concepts tested in previous-year examinations;
- General examination trends;
- Subject-matter knowledge; and
- Other publicly available information relevant to the preparation of practice assessments.

However, BELL's questions are independently prepared by the BELL/HEXEL team.

BELL does not represent its questions as official UPSC questions.

The BELL team does not claim ownership over underlying facts, general concepts, examination subjects, publicly available information, or other material that is not legally capable of being exclusively owned by HEXEL.

HEXEL's ownership claim relates to its original expression, wording, compilation, arrangement, selection, presentation, explanations, test structure, database structure, and other protectable elements created for BELL.

5. NO COPYING OF UPSC PREVIOUS-YEAR QUESTIONS

BELL's questions may be inspired by concepts, topics, patterns, and trends observed in previous-year question papers.

However, the BELL question bank is independently created by the BELL/HEXEL team and is not represented as a copied collection of publicly available UPSC previous-year questions.

Where BELL refers to or discusses an examination, syllabus, subject, concept, or publicly known examination trend, such reference does not create any affiliation with or ownership over the relevant examination authority or its materials.

6. NO AFFILIATION WITH ANY ORGANISATION

BELL and HEXEL VENTURES PRIVATE LIMITED are independent entities.

BELL has no affiliation, association, authorisation, endorsement, sponsorship, partnership, collaboration, or official relationship with any examination authority, government organisation, educational institution, coaching organisation, or other organisation merely because its examination or subject is referenced by BELL.

In particular, BELL has no affiliation, authorisation, endorsement, sponsorship, partnership, or official relationship with the Union Public Service Commission (UPSC) or the Government of India.

References to UPSC, its examinations, syllabus areas, previous-year examination trends, or other examination-related information are made solely for identifying the subject and intended practice context of BELL's mock tests.

BELL must not be interpreted as an official platform, authorised platform, or representative of any such organisation.

7. COPYRIGHT AND OTHER INTELLECTUAL-PROPERTY RIGHTS

BELL content may be protected by applicable intellectual-property laws, including copyright and other rights recognised under applicable law.

Nothing in this Policy grants a user ownership of BELL's intellectual property.

A user purchasing access to a BELL mock test receives a limited, personal, non-exclusive, non-transferable right to access and use the purchased test for its intended practice purpose during the applicable access period.

Purchase of access does not constitute:

- Sale of the question bank;
- Transfer of copyright;
- Transfer of database rights;
- Transfer of ownership of any BELL content;
- A licence to reproduce BELL content; or
- A licence to commercially exploit BELL content.

This prohibition includes copying BELL content manually or through automated methods.

14. USER-GENERATED MATERIAL

If users voluntarily submit information, feedback, reports, screenshots, suggestions, or other material to BELL, BELL may use such material as reasonably necessary to investigate issues, provide support, improve the Platform, maintain records, and protect its rights.

Users must not submit material to BELL that they do not have the right to provide.

Nothing in this section transfers ownership of a user's independent intellectual property to HEXEL unless separately agreed in writing.

15. TRADEMARKS AND BRANDING

The BELL name, logos, branding, visual identity, and other brand elements associated with BELL are proprietary assets of HEXEL VENTURES PRIVATE LIMITED to the extent protected under applicable law.

Users may not reproduce, modify, imitate, register, or commercially use BELL branding in a manner that suggests ownership, affiliation, endorsement, sponsorship, or authorisation by HEXEL without prior written permission.

16. THIRD-PARTY INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

BELL may refer to names, examination titles, organisations, trademarks, publicly available information, or other materials belonging to third parties.

Such references do not mean that HEXEL claims ownership of third-party intellectual property.

Third-party names and marks remain the property of their respective owners where applicable.

In particular, BELL's reference to UPSC or UPSC-related examinations does not mean that HEXEL owns the UPSC name, government marks, official examination materials, or other intellectual property belonging to UPSC or the Government of India.
